Zuger Kantonalbank

Market Minute

Bossard confirms long-term bottoming formation

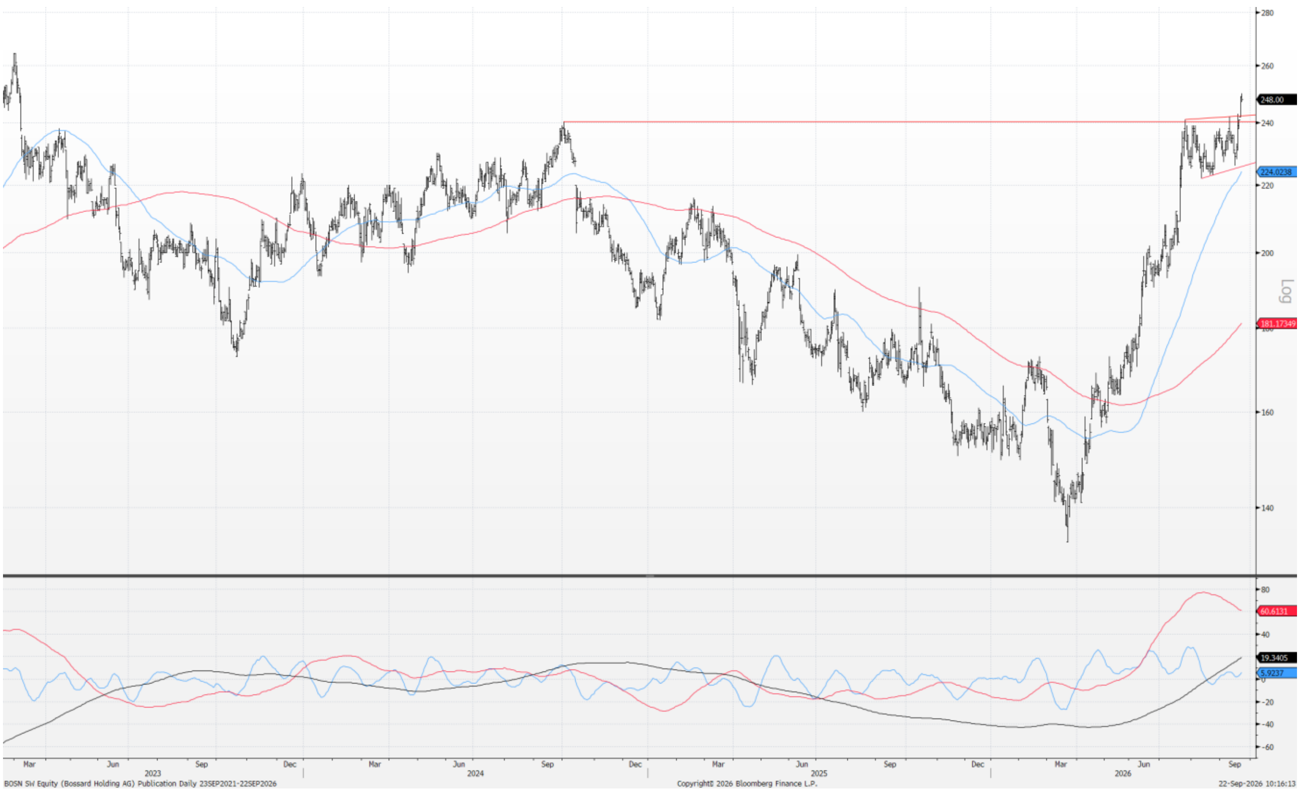
23.09.2026

Shares in Bossard have broken out of a long-term bottoming formation on a closing price basis. From a technical analysis perspective, we see further significant upside potential for the shares as well as a continuation of the intact relative outperformance versus the Swiss Performance Index (SPI).

Further price gains expected for Bossard shares

Bossard shares have broken out of a long-term bottoming formation on a closing price basis. Their relative strength versus the SPI has also increased significantly since March 2026. In addition, Bossard is solidly positioned above the medium-term 63-day and long-term 200-day average. From a technical perspective, this points to a continuation of the intact uptrend. Two out of three momentum indicators in the lower half of the chart are trending upwards, thus confirming the positive overall technical picture. From a technical analysis perspective, we are therefore positive on Bossard shares and expect further price gains together with ongoing outperformance versus the SPI.

Bossard AG on daily chart basis



Bossard AG with 63- and 200-day average in the upper half of the chart and technical momentum indicators in the lower half.

Source: Bloomberg, Zuger Kantonalbank, 22.9.2026

Wir begleiten Sie im Leben.

Based in Zug, Bossard AG is a global supplier of industrial fastening and assembly solutions. Its core business comprises the distribution of fastening elements to industrial clients – including screws, nuts, rivets and bespoke fastening solutions.
Furthermore, Bossard supports its customers with technical engineering and advice on the choice and application of fastening technology, with assembly and production solutions, inventory, procurement and C-parts management as well as digitalised smart factory logistics solutions for reducing inventories, process costs and production expense.

In a nutshell, Bossard helps industrial firms develop and assemble products more efficiently and in addition supplies them with the required small parts – not just through the sale of screws but also through integrated technical and logistics services.

"Bossard's technical strength is impressive, and we expect further price gains."

Pascal Zingg
Investment Advisor

Conclusion

Bossard shares continue to impress from a technical perspective. The breakout from the long-term bottoming formation, stable price above key moving averages and relative strength versus the SPI point to an intact positive overall picture.

Provided these technical factors remain in place, we see further upside potential and expect Bossard shares to continue their relative outperformance versus the SPI.

Do you have any questions or thoughts on this publication?
Please do not hesitate to contact your client advisor.

We are signatories to or members of the following organisations: